

About the PPI

The Pensions Policy Institute is an educational charity set up to promote, on a non-political basis, the study of pensions and other retirement provisions.

The PPI has established itself as an authoritative independent commentator on policy on pensions and retirement provision. Our publications provide the facts and encourage debate. They are used in Parliament, in the media, by pension providers and by many others in the pension community.

The PPI provides research and analysis on the implications of pension reform proposals on State Pensions, private pensions and on the interaction between them. This work enables the PPI to be a well-informed analyst and commentator on pensions policy and retirement provision.

The PPI produce an extensive agenda for research annually and our Supporting Members play a role in setting and achieving the agenda.

Over 100 Briefing Notes
Over 95 Research
Reports
Over 40 Consultations & Responses

As a registered charity we receive no central funding, and much of our policy informing activity is funded through the support of our members who provide us with an annual donation. Our Core Research is funded with income from the PPI's Supporting Membership Scheme and includes:

- The Pensions Primer: a guide to the UK pensions system
- Consultation responses
- Briefing Notes
- Pensions Facts
- Pensions Modelling and Development
- The distributional impact of State Pension age rises

The PPI also undertakes Commissioned Research for third party clients provided that the research is:

- Within the PPI's charitable objective;
- The PPI has the capability and the capacity to undertake the research; and
- The research sponsor or sponsors are happy for the final research to be published.

We actively encourage all PPI members to feed in to our research agenda

Chris Curry joined the PPI as Research Director in July 2002 and was responsible for the research programme for 11 years prior to being appointed Director in June 2013. Chris now has responsibility for leading and managing the PPI. At the PPI Chris has authored and presented a number of research reports analysing pensions (including state, private and public sector pensions), pension reforms and other provision for retirement income. Chris is experienced in presenting research findings to a wide range of audiences and to the media.

In February 2017 Chris was announced as one of the three co-chairs for the DWP AE Review Advisory Group. Chris will be leading on providing advice on the theme of Contributions.

The review will look to ensure that workplace pensions continue to meet the needs of individual savers and employers, while remaining fair, affordable and sustainable for future generations.

Sarah Luheshi has overall responsibility for the PPI's research programme, as well as supporting the PPI's Director. She has over thirty years' experience in financial services, initially working for a FTSE 100 composite insurance company and then as a management consultant, both in the UK and overseas. The majority of her 15 years as a management consultant focused on delivering quantitative and qualitative research projects for major clients, with an emphasis on private pensions. She has presented and spoken at a number of events on a range of topics including lessons from around the international pension world, tax relief, the complexity of DC consumer decision making and IGCs.

Daniela Silcock is Head of Policy Research at the Pensions Policy Institute, and she leads the PPI Policy Research team. She has a wealth of experience in conducting quantitative and qualitative research into all aspects of state and private pensions policy, writing articles for journals and national press, and presenting to a variety of domestic and international audiences, including radio and television appearances. Daniela originally joined the PPI in 2008 and took a short break in 2012 to work as a Committee Specialist for the Work and Pensions Select Committee.

Tim Pike is the Head of Modelling of the PPI responsible for delivering the models and modelling to support the PPI's current research program. The modelling includes projections of individual outcomes, of costs to the state and the impact of pensions policy upon the pensioner and saving populations. Tim has authored reports and his analysis is used to inform and illustrate others, considering both state and private pension systems. Recent topics have included tax relief, private pension saving, State Pension age, and understanding of the saving population. Tim joined the PPI in July 2015 from Legal and General where he spent nearly ten years contributing to a wide variety of actuarial modelling projects, from financial reporting to annuity pricing.
