

Knowledge Sharing Seminars

An introduction to the UK Pensions system

About Us

The PPI has established itself as an authoritative independent commentator on policy on pensions and retirement provision. The PPI conducts research and analysis on the implications of policy reform proposals on state pensions, private pensions and on the interaction between them.

Knowledge Sharing Seminars

The PPI's Knowledge Sharing Seminar is an ideal introduction to how the UK state and private pension systems work and current policy debates and are delivered from the PPI's independent and unbiased perspective. Bespoke seminars can be designed which cover specific areas in more detail.

Who should attend?

New starters in the world of pensions policy or those who have specialist knowledge in one area of pensions but are looking to gain a more general understanding of the whole pensions landscape.

The seminars form an ideal part of new employees' inductions and are often utilised by the DWP for their new analysts from within the Private Pensions directorate as part of their induction process.

Topics covered

State Pension, legacy issues, State Pension inflationary increases, State Pension age, private pensions, workplace schemes, market changes, investments, regulation, taxation, automatic enrolment and future challenges.
